Mrs. Garner was buried in the Uvalde cemetery yesterday after brief services in her home. She died Tuesday afternoon at 78.

Her physicians said she died of Parkinsonian disease, a paralysis that had afflicted her for six years. For the last year, she had been unable to move from her wheelchair. "It was a privilege for me to have her friendship," wired President Truman, who was a senator when Garner was the 32nd vice-president of the United States. "She was a great and gallant soul."

Jester Wires Message
Gov. Beauford Jester wired, "personally and for the entire state of Texas I express profound sorrow over the passing of Mrs. Garner."

Proclaimed by FDR

National Aviation Day was proclaimed by President Rooseveit on July 25, 1939, under authority of a resolution adopted by congress two months earlier. Rooseveit said the day should be observed on August 19 in each succeeding year in recognition of the Wright brothers' and America's preeminent position in aviation.

There is systematic recruiting of guinea pigs at the University of Pennsylvania medical school. When student volunteers are wanted, a note is posted on the Dean's bulletin board. There were two notes this spring.

One asked for three for metabolism tests. They were to spend all their time in a hospital, but would be free to read, study and play shut-in games, all for $100 and keep. The other wanted an unnamed number for respiration studies for a stipend not specified.

THE high point of all human guinea pig work, and rewards too, was the conquest of yellow fever, by Dr. Walter Reed's group, in Havana, in 1900. There were four doctors, seven American sidier volunteers, and 12 other volunteers, both Spanish and Americans.

Man With Mangled Ear Sought For Raping Teen-Ager

TEXARKANA, Aug. 19.—(P)—Sheriff W. E. Davis of Miller county (Arkansas) disclosed Wednesday that a Texas-wide search has been underway for a "cauliflower-eared" white man suspected of raping a 17-year-old Miller county girl.

The alleged attack occurred alongside a county road Monday night.

The suspect was described as 21, six feet tall, with a mangled right ear. He spoke with a decided Northern accent and was believed to be from Detroit, Mich., and headed for California.

Davis said the man was driving a 1941 Ford Coach reported to have been stolen in Illinois several days ago.

The sheriff said a physician examined the girl and found evidence that an attack had taken place. The girl was not beaten.

Davis said the story was not released immediately since officers believed the man "hiding out" in

Davis said the girl accepted a lift from the man Monday at noon and drove around with him until about 6 p. m. The man attacked her alongside a country lane despite her resistance. Later she was released by him on the outskirts of Texarkana.

Better Than a Career

Here was a woman who found success, in the largest meaning of that word, in ways open to the humblest woman o.. earth. Her sort of success, which is the best sort, had been achieved by ministry in common ways throughout the ordinary days, "Social service" is only the modern name for it: James called it "pure religion and u..defiled."

Very few girls can achieve "careers," as that word is commonly understood: and those who do are usually disappointed. Literally everyone, however, may win the Dorcas standa. These of success, which is Christian helpfulness.

the Dorcas standa. of success, which is Christian helpfulness. There are more tears shed at the blers of the sweet so ts who serve than by the graves of grand opera prima donnas.

Peter raised Dorcas from the dead. That miracle advertised the supernatural Gospel. It told the never-old story that Christianity is never-old story that Christianity is a religion of power. In one way or another it brings new life to dead spirits, and is followed by a trail of rejoicing and service.

While this miracle was literal, it also typifies the surge of new vigor which comes to every woman who hears the Gospel's "Tabitha, arise!"

Christianity is a religion of ascent. It is ever summoning its dis-cent. It is ever summonling its dis-ciples to a larger, loftier life. Not many have been raised from phy-sical death, but the number who have been raised to larger life and to larger power is beyond compu-tation

The state rested at 10:15 s. m.
John Hilliard, Fort Worth night-watchman, was the first defense witness. He said that Mr. Woolley hired him and that Callaway was the head guard He way the shoot. the head guard. He saw the shoot-Ing.

Duniap walked toward Callaway and moved "right up against him" and he said it appeared to him that his right arm went toward his gun—he pulled the gun and then Callaway pulled is pistol and the shooting started.

"Good Reputation"

A. P. Mays, district judge; C. O. Curington, former sheriff, and Walter Hayes, deputy sheriff, former sheriff, testified the defendant bore a good reputation as a law-abiding citizen.

Both Curington and Hayes, under cross-examination, said that Callaway was present once when a Mexican was killed by Ed Sheets, policeman, but did not know anything about the killing of a white man in Arizona thing about the killing of a white man in Arlzona.

The defendant took the stand at 10:52 a. m. for 33 minutes of testimony and examination.

Callaway has resided all of his life in Navarro county with the exception of 12 years in the army. He will be 69 years of age, Dec. 7, this ware by this year. He testified he had never been indicted and had never killed any man prior to this trouble.

Proposition

He said Dunlap had worked several months, and made a proposition to him (Callaway) that they could make money selling liquor at the field. The defendant said he told Dunlap that "that will never go as long as I'm out here."

Callaway said after that incident the deceased seemed cool toward him.

the deceased seemed cool toward him.

Relative to the trouble with Renfrow, Callaway said that Renfrow kicked him on a crippled leg and that he struck him and admitted he probably cursed him Callaway said he had been warned that if he had trouble with one, it would be with both Renfrow and Dunlap, After striking Renfrow, he testified, he turned and saw Dunlap coming toward him—that he pulled his pistol and then after Dunlap had his hand on tegun, the defendant said he pulled his pistol and started shooting.

Not Angry

Callaway said he had no previous reason to kill Dunlap—could have fired him—but was not angry at him.

"I shot in the defense of my.

gry at him.
"I shot in the defense of my self," Callaway declared. Under cross-examination, Calla-way said he had a reason for shooting only after the deceased reached for the pistol. He admitreached for the pistol. He admit-ted carrying two pistols, but said he used only one, and was not pos-itive whether or not he emptied the gun into the body of Dunlap. He said he struck the fatally wounded man on the head, put his foot on his arm and took the pis-tol from his grasp, but denied us-ing a shotgun to keep anyone from going to the aid of the wounded

Callaway said Renfrow had deliberately kicked or struck his crippled leg a dozen times.

Received Warning
The defendant said tant Gilcrease (now deceased) and Dock Carver warned him that if he had any trouble with either Renfrow or Dunlap, he would have both to deal with.

Callaway termed the two men (Renfrow and Dunlap) as "disloyal troublemakers."
The defendant denied being a pistol shot expert, but admitted he was better than the average man, and that pistol shooting was a hobby with him.

R. P. Walker, Kerens banker; A. C. McClung, Kerens druggist; Horace Newsom, Kerens grocer, all testified that the defendant bore a good reputation, and denied knowing anything about a difficulty in-
